Prologue

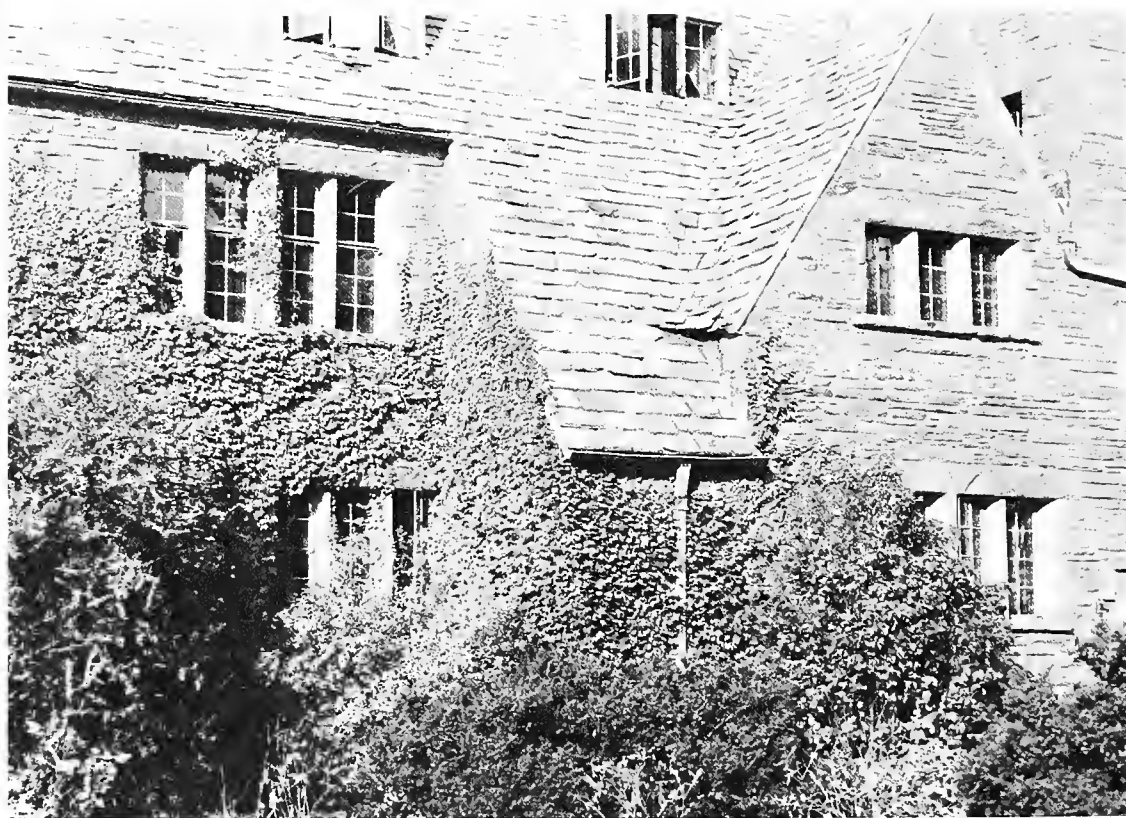

Someone once said that Swarthmore students walk around looking as if they know a secret that no one else knows. And perhaps this is true. For many of us, Swarthmore has shaped the core of our lives. Though we will continue to grow and change throughout life, there is a part of us, be it good or bad, that will always belong to Swarthmore. This book is dedicated to Swarthmore: to the time when we thought we wouldn't make it through that all-nighter, to the one textbook that was really worth reading, to good friends and sunny days in the Crum, to the times when . . .

Epilogue

I remember how I felt Commencement Day; a paradox of sentiments. Half of me was excited, so ready to be free and to move on. My other half suppressed a choked sob that rose in my throat as I took my last walk in the Crum and said good-bye to friends and professors who had been my whole life for four years.

Looking back on those years, they weren't so bad; but nothing ever is in retrospect. I am grateful for my experience at Swarthmore: for the knowledge, for the close friends, for the wisdom I hope I gained. I shall not say good-bye to Swarthmore for I know that my time there has laid a foundation for me, and that I will return again and again to the Swarthmore that has become a permanent part of me.

My friends, I wish you all the luck and happiness the world has to offer. I look forward to the times when our paths will cross again. Until then . . .
